Helpful Information for You and Your Pool

What's the difference between your new Car and your new PnF Coated Pool?

New car:

- Shiny
- Smells new
- Got a lengthy warranty
- Needs looking after for best life expectancy

• New PnF Coated Pool:

- Shiny
- Looks fantastic
- Got a lengthy warranty
- Needs looking after for best life expectancy

Basically, there is little to no difference between the 2. They both have similar attributes.

And the life expectancy of your new car is largely the result of how well it's maintained. This includes keeping it clean inside and out (washing off dirt and road grime, removing stains inside and so on) and making sure the car is serviced in accord with the detailed service requirements by the dealer. Then your new car will last a lot longer and look a lot better than if these basic undertakings are ignored partially or completely.

And the life expectancy of your new PnF coated pool is largely the result of how well it's maintained. This includes keeping it clean above and below the waterline (brooming walls / floors to remove any chemical residues, leaves and algae, weekly in summer and monthly in winter), and making sure the pool water is checked by the pool shop (weekly in summer and monthly in winter), and the chemistry adjusted as needed to keep it healthy and in specification . Then your new PnF Coated Pool will last a lot longer and look a lot better than if these basic undertakings are ignored partially or completely.
